A cop and career prosecutor, Joe Peters is the best qualified Republican candidate for Attorney General.

He began his law enforcement career as a street cop in his home town of Scranton. At the Attorney General's office he rose to become the state's top drug prosecutor.

As a federal mafia prosecutor Joe was part of the team that convicted Philadelphia mob boss Little Nicky Scarfo and his gang on all counts during a 3-month trial before an anonymous and sequestered jury.

Later Joe went to the White House Drug Czar's Office where he served in top positions under two presidents. He managed the $250 million High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area program in 26 cities across the country.

In recent years he has consulted to law enforcement in Israel, Panama, Italy, the UK and Kuwait.

Joe graduated from King's College and the Dickinson School of Law.

Joe is the oldest of five children of Gene and Peg Peters and is the proud father of his son Max; his dad served two-terms as a GOP Mayor of Scranton.
